Artist Bio

Music is more than just theories of rhythm and melody, it is tonality, quality of sound, space, or "air" as I like to call it, and emotion. As a solo guitarist, Peter Gross utilizes live-looping to create complex rhythmic compositions, as well as open tunings for lush, ambient tracks that can offer a focused concert experience or background music at wineries, galas, and events. He recently released his first, self-produced, solo acoustic EP. He performs in and around Ashland, OR as a solo instrumentalist and singing and playing arrangements of tunes both classic and modern. Each show is different, each set is different. As with music itself, anything goes.

Musical Styles and Influence

Peter's acoustic stylings stem from a deep study of Jimmy Page, of Led Zeppelin. Through the exposure to alternate tunings of the guitar, lush and layered compositions began to flow out nearly fully formed. Add the improvisational inspiration of Led Zeppelin, Phish and the Grateful Dead with the rhythmic influence of artists such as James Brown, Funkadelic and Fela Kuti, and you get a unique mixture of syncopation and ambience sure to please any crowd.

Live Performance Highlights

Peter has performed up and down the west coast for the past 25 years including the Strawberry Music Festival; the Oregon Country Fair; Kuumbwa Jazz Center in Santa Cruz, CA; The Cascade Theater in Redding, CA; and other notable venues in Oregon and California.
